Crystal meth also blocks dopamine from leaving the brain, trapping it in the brain's neurons for longer periods of time.

This leads to a pleasurable high. This is the reason why crystal meth is so addictive. Eventually, with repeated use, the brain develops a tolerance to crystal meth.

#3: Crystal Meth
Addiction Can Lead to Both Acute and Chronic Overdose. People who use meth are at high risk of experiencing a sudden overdose.

When used in high
doses, meth can lead
to overheating, stroke, and kidney failure. All of these crystal meth side effects can be deadly and will require immediate medical
